A comfortably arranged family home in the seaside village of Mežgarciems. The functional layout allows a family with children to live comfortably and conveniently.

The house was built to a very high standard, with a well-thought-out layout, and was commissioned in 2008. It is built on reinforced concrete foundations using Fibo blocks, with a metal sheet roof and concrete floor slabs.

City water supply and sewerage are connected.

Heating is provided by a gas boiler, but there is also an alternative option – a stove that can be heated with...
